POLO TEAMS HOLD FINAL WORK-OUT

Ed. Vernot's Coaching Shows
Effect On Teams.

SAME LINE-UP.

Large Turnout of Rooters and
on Friday Night.

Last night the Polo Teams put in a strenuous practice preparatory to their playing the double-header against the M.A.A.A. on Friday night. The Seniors showed remarkable form in their practice. Their speed and swimming has decidedly improved, this being due to the indefatigable work of Ed. Vernot in coaching the teams.

In practicing, the Seniors showed remarkable combination and speed. It seemed as if they had the ball bewitched. Time after time, under Vernot's directions, the ball was passed from man to man in a most bewildering fashion.

Practicing shooting, they each time shot the ball into the goal with unfailing accuracy. It seemed as if the goal keeper was of no avail in stopping these canon balls.

The Intermediates, too, have shown a decided improvement in their playing. They also bear evidence of the value of Vernot's coaching.

They showed great improvement in passing and combination, while their swimming has also greatly improved.

Later, both teams held a practice match, in which the Seniors showed their unquestionable superiority, playing with a vigor that was truly amazing. They sent the ball into Intermediates' goal-line time after time. On the rare occasions when the Intermediates were allowed to have a shot at the Seniors' net, "Curly" Walters in goal put an end to their ambition. It seems that "Curly" stops everything and anything, and he is undoubtedly the best man for this position.

This does not mean that the Intermediates made a poor showing. They played splendidly, but they were outclassed by the swifter and more experienced Seniors.

Mr. Vernot has taught the Seniors and Intermediates some new plays, which both teams used to good advantage.

The M.A.A.A. will have to go all the way to even have a look in when they meet the McGill teams on Friday night, if the latter maintain the standard they set last night.

A win now for the Seniors will give them the championship of the C.A.P.A.; so it is up to the Rooters to be there and cheer their teams to victory.

It is hoped that the members of the

SKI CLUB MEETS THIS AFTERNOON

Much Business To Be Dealt With Concerning Meet.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Union, in the room opposite the Cafeteria, the Ski Club will hold its first meeting. Everyone is asked to turn out and give his hearty support.

This year a great deal of attention will be paid to those who are learning to ski. Some arrangement will be made to give them some coaching. Also, races, proficiency tests and jumps will be held for novices, thus giving everyone a chance to see what he can do.

A question which will have to be settled is, what events are to be held at the meet. Also the possibility of standardizing events for all Inter-collegiate Ski Meets, as is the case with the track meets. Besides the jumping and cross-country run, which, of course, are the most important, some of the following races might be held: Intercollegiate relay, ski-joring, a dash, obstacle, harrier and also the ski proficiency test.

Preparations for the Intercollegiate Meet, elimination trials will be held to choose the team.

The jumping competition will be held in all probability as an inter-collegiate affair and not with other clubs. A dance will be held in the Union the week-end of the meet.

Other business includes: The election of a manager; the change in the constitution; week-end trip to the Laurentians, and other questions.

BORDEAUX TO BE VISITED BY STUDENTS

The Social Service Club In Charge.

POPULAR JAIL.

Arrangements To Be Announced At Meeting On Thursday Night.

This year, according to authoritative information received, McGill students will again have the privilege of visiting Bordeaux Jail and studying existing conditions at that institution, which is one of the most modern and thorough institutions of its kind on the North American Continent. It is situated on the outskirts of the city and is reached by street cars of the St. Denis-Ahuntsic line.

The prison itself is a revelation to one who has never been through such an institution, an education which one very seldom has the opportunity of receiving in every day life. The students who will be fortunate enough to be among those who will travel to Bordeaux will certainly appreciate the above statement after their trip.

Last year two hundred made the trip on a Wednesday afternoon under the leadership of the Y.M.C.A. Unfortunately the number was too large to enable the Governor and his staff to explain the finer details of the system, such as the turret from which all cells are controlled by electricity and other such interesting devices. This year, however, the boys are to be the personal guests of Governor Landriault, in groups of twenty-five, and he will personally conduct them through the different departments, explaining how the men pass their time and the methods used in dealing with the various types of prisoners, their weak points and their needs.

The Governor is also anxious to welcome the Professoriate and they are also to be included in the expeditions. Special days will be set aside for them and the groups on those days will be composed entirely of members from the Staff should they care to journey out to Bordeaux under the leadership of a member of the University Social Service Club executive.

The dates on which the first groups will go out will be announced later in the "Daily." Each member of a party will be furnished with a ticket good for that date only and admission will be furnished to strictly limited ticket holders. This will assure every one concerned that they will receive the maximum benefit and instruction to be derived from such a trip. Each party will have a leader who will be a member of the University Social Service Club, under whose auspices these trips will be held. This Club is doing exceedingly good work around the Campus this year in the preparation of clinical trips to different centres, where the underprivileged boys and men are being dealt with. By this means students will be given an insight into the lives of numberless thousands throughout the world which they never again will have the opportunity of gaining.

Governor Landriault, who will be our host on these occasions, in an interview with a representative of the McGill Social Service Club, expressed a keen desire to be of service to McGill students in any way, and assured them a most welcome reception from his staff. The Governor is a thorough gentleman, with most modern ideas about the treatment of

SNOWSHOERS DECIDE UPON TRAMP IN DEC.

Tentative Arrangements Are Being Made.

MEETING YESTERDAY.

All Interested Are Urged To Attend Next Week's Meeting.

There was a very representative gathering of the Snowshoe Club in the Union last evening. Although the attendance was quite satisfactory in every way, the executive are nevertheless anxious to see a still larger turnout and a still greater interest manifested in a winter sport in many ways peculiar to Canada.

The president, F. D. Ackman, was in the chair, and Mr. McKay, the honorary president, was also present. The feasibility of holding a snowshoer tramp as a commencement of the club's winter activities, was discussed. The meeting appeared to be strongly in favor of this tramp being held in conjunction with the R.V.C., and possibly to assume the form of a social evening afterwards. It was decided to leave this in the hands of the committee, who will bring in their report at next week's meeting.

The recognition of the club by the Athletic Association of the University probably constituted the question of greatest moment. From all appearances, the acceptance of the club as a member of the Association is extremely probable, and undoubtedly this, involving as it would the possibility of obtaining an "M" by making the snowshoer team, will serve as an added inducement to all intending to participate in this healthful form of exercise. Snowshoeing must be placed primarily upon an athletic basis; this is the main purpose of the organization of the club. The social side, while doubtless of great interest, is a second issue, but will nevertheless be fostered to the limit in the hope that those attending these tramps will in turn support the cross-country runs to be staged at various times.

There are many outside associations with which to compete, several of which already have intimated their desire of competing with the McGill men. Besides those clubs in Montreal, carnivals will take place in Dartmouth, Quebec, St. Johns and McGill. This last mentioned is being promoted by the Ski Club, and the Snowshoe Club is asked to place their representatives in the field.

It is imperative that every man at McGill realize that he can snowshoe; that anyone that can walk can likewise snowshoe; that snowshoeing is a Canadian sport, and should be developed among Canadians; and

ANNUAL BOARD MEETS TO-NIGHT

Representatives of Junior
Years Confer at R.V.C.

The fate of the Annual will be decided at a meeting to be held in the Royal Victoria College, at 7.30 o'clock, this evening. At this meeting, the presidents of the various junior years and the representatives to the Annual Board will attend to discuss the advisability of printing the book again this year.

The matter of the Annual has been deferred until the present time owing to the fact that the Junior Dance occupied the attention of that year. Now that that function has been successfully carried off, the year book will receive the close attention of the members of the most active year at the University.

The Annual has been printed for some years past with varying success, and, if anything is to be done this session, it will have to be commenced as soon as possible.

The following members are asked to attend the meeting this evening:

J. M. Mitchell
E. V. Brown

A COVERED RINK

Many students have noticed with interest the preparations which are going forward for ice sports and the Council has finally overcome the financial and other problems which have, in past years, attended the support of this important institution. The campus rink has always been an important item in the athletic and social programme of the student body. This was especially true with last year's increased registration and the renewal of pre-war activities, and the rink was in such constant use that it was frequently in poor shape. Besides the calls made upon it by the senior teams it was also required for inter-class practices and games, and the limited accommodation frequently necessitated these being held at unsuitable hours. Those wishing to take advantage of it for skating found themselves able to do so only on rare occasions. A rink with a full time-table limited their activities in this direction to a single evening. On that occasion the rink had been in such constant use that the ice was soon totally unfit for skating.

It is expected that one of the rinks now being erected will be devoted to hockey practices and to the inter-class series while the other will be reserved to a large extent for skating. Such an arrangement promises longer and more convenient skating hours on the best of ice and should encourage a larger number of skating parties which should rank amongst the most popular of the winter social functions.

In these days of hopes and prophecies we may look ahead to further skating facilities. A covered rink would be a welcome addition in many ways. This would mean better ice and solve the snow problem. Schedules for practices and games are often upset by weather conditions and committees and clubs planning skating parties have to face a similar difficulty and a sudden storm may turn an anticipated pleasure into a disappointment. The shelter a covered rink would afford would add many hours to those in which skating is possible in an open rink. Such an enterprise would undoubtedly be supported by the student body and would attract many who in the past have patronized the public city rinks.

R. V. C. NOTES

BASKETBALL.

Inter-Class games will be played in Molson Hall between 2 and 4 p.m. to-day. Players please see Athletic Board for exact time. All up, Rooters!

FENCING CLUB HELD PRACTICE

Immense Progress is Made Under Mr. Raimondi's Tuition.

The Fencing section of the B., W. and F. held a very successful practice last evening in the Union. Special attention was paid by the instructor, Mr. Raimondi, to Section A. Section B will be instructed on Thursday, but the men from Section A must also attend, since the Department of Physical Education insist on two hours exercise weekly.

The men are coming along fine, and the club is sure to turn out quite a number of experienced fencers. Mr. Raimondi is very well pleased with the spirit shown by the men; and all those who have dropped out since the beginning of the term will indeed rue the day that they decided to quit.

The next practice is on Thursday at 5.15 p.m. Members will please stow away all equipments after they are finished using them.

The resignation of Miss D. S. Barnes from the Senior Play Committee was then read and accepted. Miss L. Roston was elected in Miss Barnes' place. The meeting then adjourned.

Correspondence

The "Daily" is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY. No communications will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,

It was with great surprise indeed that I noticed in yesterday's issue two letters from writers who took exception to the views put forth by "Securitas." When I read his letter the other day I certainly believed that in it he was expressing the opinion of the students as a whole. And I still hold to my belief.

I would like to be among the first to congratulate the first writer on his extreme agility in so far as avoiding any contact with sleds and toboggans and would assure him that if he were to give a course in this art he might perhaps be able to make a little easy money on the side, for many there are who stand in dire need of such a training. We cannot all be athletes or strategists, but with these methods of protection against the swift onslaughts of the juveniles on the Campus we would perhaps be able to enjoy our existence a little more quietly.

The second writer dwells more on the duty we have in the way of providing some kind of amusement for the children. Personally I have no objection whatsoever to the boys and girls sliding, provided they only do it in a place that is suitable for the purpose. It is but a very few years indeed since the days when I used to disport myself in sliding, but certainly I never did it at the risk of life and limb to others. Since Mr. "Optimus" seems to have the case of the children so much at heart, I might suggest that when the snow begins to melt that he arrange marble tournaments for them in the halls of the Arts Building, or a top spinning competition on the front steps. Those who were awaiting their turn to play might amuse themselves meanwhile very well in playing tag and hide-and-go-seek around the lockers which furnish a veritable happy hunting ground for such games. In such a manner, which would certainly prove of no discomfort to the students who really enjoy doing anything at all in an endeavour to give the kiddies a good time, then would he be completely happy in thus carrying out his fond ideas. I trust that he will see fit to put some of these, I blush to say it, really excellent plans into effect.

Yours truly,

PRO SECURITATE.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,

In answer to a letter appearing in Monday's issue I wish to say a few words on the "Children's Nuisance on the Campus."

I understand that if I happened to be an old man slowly winding my way toward a cold grave I should perhaps utter similar protestation. But McGill is not a Hospital for Invalids nor the infirm. It is rather the home of a lively crowd, so why should we object to children living in the campus.

Their youthful cheers and infantile intrepidity refresh our minds after weary hours of lectures. Why chafe them? Why send them into the street where their lives are constantly exposed? Where would be our hospitality?

The campus grounds are of no use to us now. We are not even allowed to cross them to shorten our way. But if we are deprived of their use by the authorities why should we revenge ourselves by asking further restriction laws?

As for the danger of being killed, well, I have passed again and again by the paths, the author of the letter seems to dread so much, and I failed to see the wild hordes.

I should be ashamed of myself if through over-prudence, which is a brother of cowardice, I lengthened my way by passing on Sherbrooke street. Above all these kiddies while playing do look amazingly to the imposing buildings and later when they are at school their aim and dream will be to become a student of Old McGill.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain

Yours truly,

CHARLES C. Science '22.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON BOYS' WORK

By Director of Griffintown Boys' Club.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Social Club Meets at Eight p.m. To-Morrow.

On Thursday evening next at eight o'clock, the Social Service Club will hold an open meeting in Strathcona Hall. Capt. Phillips, director of the Griffintown Boys' Club, will speak on the "Underprivileged Boy."

This well-known Social Service worker has had a great deal of personal experience in work among boys of all ages, and is an authority on his subject. Few undergraduates realize the handicaps with which many boys in Montreal begin their lives. It might be interesting to learn how many of the present generation of students have considered their problem at all. Very few have ever offered them a helping hand.

This lecture has been arranged to bring before the student body the case of the boy who can never make good without the sympathy and assistance of those who have been placed in more fortunate circumstances. The speaker's representation of the subject will suggest many ways in which an interested student can add materially to his experience and his knowledge of social conditions while giving these boys a chance. A fair-minded student body must give their case a hearing.

If the students show as much interest as is expected, trips will be arranged to Bordeaux Jail, to the Boys' Club which the Social Service Club is directing, and, possibly, to other institutions. Such trips will be limited only by the support of the students.

If the attendance on Thursday evening proves that the student body is even moderately interested in such social work, the executive will arrange for monthly lectures on similar problems.

The meeting is open to both men and women students.

THEOLOGICAL FORM CONSTITUTION

Officers Elected for Ensuing Year.—Refreshments Served.

The members of the Co-operating Theological Colleges held a meeting in the reading room of the Wesleyan College last night. Professor Graham, M.A., was chairman, and the main business of the evening was to receive and adopt a constitution drawn up by an executive committee representing the four Theological Colleges.

Last March, the Students' Council of McGill extended to the affiliated Theological Colleges the privilege of Theological students becoming full Undergraduates of the University, excepting representation on the Council, on payment of the Universal Fee. This close union with the University entitles the Theological students to vote in all undergraduate activities from which he had been excluded.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and resulted as follows:

President—M. B. Peterson, B.A.
 Vice-President—G. Grosjean, B.A.
 Treas.—C. H. Hetherington, B.A., B.D.

Secretary—A. L. Richards.

The discussion as to who should be regarded as active members in the society was interesting, and caused an exciting time. Suggestions, logical and illogical, were advanced, always, of course, ending by the prevailing of the former.

Refreshments were kindly served by the Wesleyan students to the visiting brethren, thus ending a well-spent time. The Theological students can well point with pride to the evening spent in making legislation that will enable their colleges to be properly represented in the University.

ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR HOCKEY

There Are To Be Two Senior Teams.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

Meeting of Class Representatives To Be Held On Thursday.

Arrangements for the hockey season are now assuming definite proportions, and students are asked to elect hockey representatives from each class, to meet at the Union on Thursday at 5.15, in order that practice hours may be arranged. The presidents of each class are asked to make themselves responsible, and see that a competent man is chosen to fill the position. The times for practice hours will be arranged so as to fit in with the lectures as well as possible, thus allowing students to play hockey without having their work interfered with. Arrangements are again being made for the organization of an inter-class league, which proved so successful last year, and which resulted in a very close and exciting race. As two links are to be in operation this season, it is to be hoped that everyone will have a chance to indulge as much as he wants to in what is really Canada's national game, and that the inter-class league will prove as exciting this year as it was last.

As already announced, there are to be two senior teams this year, one in the Intercollegiate and one in the Montreal City League. This has been decided on account of the numerous conflicting engagements last year's senior team had to fill, and because of the wealth of material available this year. Besides these two teams, there will also be two other teams, the intermediates and the juniors, so that in all about fifty men will be playing on the University teams. The City League is to open some time during the first week of January, although the schedule is not yet announced. The Hockey Club is also trying to arrange games with some of the American colleges, which should stir up added interest, and promote good feeling between our own University and those across the border.

There are also seven of last year's team back at college, and together with these there is plenty of new material, and a lot of last year's intermediate and junior teams waiting all the season starts, with the hope that they may be able to catch a pace on one of the two senior teams.

LAW IS GOING TO BE SOCIABLE

Attempt To Be Made To Make Students Mutually Acquainted.

The fact is often lamented upon that these crowded hours of college afford the student no opportunity of knowing or even of meeting his fellows outside the classroom, and the disadvantages under which students labor from this cause have been enlarged upon.

Considering the overwhelming number of lectures which it is necessary for the majority of students to attend and the consequent tax upon spare evening hours, and also the lack of any kind of common dwelling, it is very difficult to find a solution to the problem.

However, the students in Law refuse to labor under these disabilities, and to-night are going to launch into a scheme of social life that should attract members of other faculties into following suit.

The evening will be inaugurated by a regular meal at the Union, to be followed by an informal meeting run on the lines of a Smoker.

Good fellowship being the main object of the project, all formality will be rigorously excluded. It is hoped and expected that anyone musically gifted will come forward, and if conversation flags, to keep the ball rolling with song.

BORDEAUX TO BE VISITED BY STUDENTS

prisoners. He is a graduate of the University of Montreal, a scholar, and a friend of the students, particularly of McGill.

Efforts will be made later in the season to have him address the student body as a sequel to the trips, when he would be able to discourse on his particular work.

Specific announcements will be made at the meeting of the Social Service Club, which will be held on Thursday night at Strathcona Hall, near Captain Phillips, who is Director of the Griffintown Boys' Club. Interested be present at eight o'clock Thursday night.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS EXCELLENT

Many Trying For the Senior Squad.

PRACTICE TO-NIGHT.

Great Part of Workouts Spent at Fundamentals of Game.

The basketball team will hold another practice this evening and will go one step nearer to the inter-collegiate championship. The men are all hard at work and expect to be going at top speed long before the inter-collegiate series opens.

It is perhaps too much to expect that they will be in the best of shape by the time they are ready to make their Christmas trip, but at least they will be able to give every one they meet a good battle. The material is there and all that is needed is plenty of practice to get the men going at top speed.

Coach Walsh has quite a problem on his hands choosing the senior team including the men who played last year, there are more players out this year than has been the case during any former season. The men who are turning out are, to a great extent, those who have made names for themselves while playing for other clubs. They all realize that they have to show their best to make a place on the Red and White outfit and there are no slouches at the workouts.

Naturally, a great part of the time at the practices has to be spent at the fundamentals of the game. This part of the work is really more important than the development of team play which will follow later. Running, dribbling, and passing take up much of the time of the men who turn out at the High School Gymnasium for their workouts. Of course, some time is spent each day at team work but, for the present, this is only the secondary part of the work.

Students who have not followed the game closely are not aware that some very intricate plays are used by the contesting teams. As a matter of fact the formations are as intricate as any put forward by the most astute rugby coach. The only difference is that the basketball plays have to be made much faster and they are not as apparent to the spectators as are the trick plays on the gridiron.

With basketball at the height of its popularity, the problem of securing sufficient accommodation is a difficult one for the executives of the club. Under ordinary circumstances it is hard to seat the spectators in a gymnasium but, when the sport takes on all the aspects of a major sport, the problem is much greater. However, every effort is being made to secure a hall which will accommodate as many students and other spectators as may wish to attend.

Of the old players who are turning out, Lou Kern gives the impression of being in the best form. He does not seem to be bothered and is on the aggressive throughout the practice. Hay is also in good condition as a result of his work on the track team and it will not be long before he is in midseason form. "Bones" Little seems to have just that added touch of aggressiveness that he lacked last year and it improves his play immensely. This is probably due to his work on the rugby team and the experience he gained on the team last season.

On the other hand, Laishley has somewhat curbed his tendency to be over aggressive. He spends much more of his time in taking part in the play than in giving the opposing player a hot time and, as a result, his work is much more acceptable to the team. He is one of the most valuable players on the outfit and should show up better than ever this season.

Of the new men little can be said as yet. Most of them are not in condition as yet and it would not be fair to compare them to the men who are already in good shape. The majority of them seem to be experienced men and they should add strength to the team when the best of them are chosen.

As the season progresses, the workouts will become stiffer and it is expected that they will assume their proper form after this week. The City league opens next week and the team competing in that series will have to hurry if they are to put up the game expected of them.

Elimination of players has already begun and the squads will be reduced to workable size within a few days. Once the elimination is completed it is only a matter of perfecting the teamplay and this will be proceeded with in short order.

FUNCTION OF UNIVERSITIES POINTED OUT

President Of University of Michigan Expresses Views.

SYSTEM CRITICIZED.

University Should Serve the State.

Dr. Marion LeRoy Burton, President of the University of Michigan, in his inaugural address on "The Function of the State University," said, in part:

"The University must serve the state. . . . If we remind ourselves why the American people established the public school, we shall understand the logic and sanity of our thesis that the state University exists to serve the state. . . . In the Ordinance of 1787, with great foresight, it was affirmed 'religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged. . . . In 1833, the Revised Statutes provided for the establishment of the University and stated its purpose in the following terms: 'The object of the University shall be to provide the inhabitants of the state with means of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the various branches of literature, science and arts.' These plans of the State of Michigan are typical of the convictions held by the American people as a whole. . . .

"I therefore venture to affirm that a new day must dawn in American higher education. All of us have been feeling our way gradually toward this conclusion. . . . This University cannot escape from its primary responsibilities to the people as a whole. Professor Jay William Hudson, of the University of Missouri, has given us recently one of the most stimulating formulations of this educational aim. In his book entitled 'The College and New America,' he defends. . . . This thesis: 'The aim of American education is to produce a definite American social order, in relation to a definite world order.' I believe we can say to ourselves, to our students, and to the public that our institutions of higher learning exist in a very definite and compelling fashion to help in the establishment of the new American civilization. And we must say it, not only at inaugural exercises and annual gatherings, but in regent's meeting, classrooms, public assemblies and even in faculty meetings. We must actually do the thing rather than formulate it in nebulous and vanishing flourishes of rhetoric.

"Precisely then what does this aim involve? In one sense it will be merely the rebirth of original American intentions. It will bring us back to the principles upon which our educational system was established. Translated into the terms of our day it will mean that this versatile, complex, pulsating entity which we call 'America' must be welded into a unified whole. . . .

"Our function is to select the permanent values and idealize them. America must have interpretation. If we may judge the interests and spirit of our people by the things they do most, we must begin to understand moving pictures, dancing, motor cars and machinery. There is no need of railing against these things. Mighty elements of truth are written in capital letters all over these factors of American life. The 'academic mind' may not see it but the college professor of to-day discerns it. The university must interpret American life. Its universal tendencies must be reckoned with. It is possible to give the people at one and the same time what they want and what they ought to have. . . .

"But what will such leadership require? Back of any successful effort in this field there must be first of all a real understanding, or if you prefer, some clear definition, of America. . . . Confronted with the exigencies of war, we knew what America meant. The morale of our armies was based upon an actual appreciation of American ideals. They were no hazy, unreal, vague generalities. They were incisive, clear cut, and compelling facts. They were the personification of definiteness. . . . The best professors in all subjects in all American Universities knew what America stood for and what she was. It is for America now in times of peace that we must assume consciously our share of responsibility. . . . If the University, however, is to render this service, it will require something more than a definition of America. Certain new qualities must enter into our very life and atmosphere. The detachment and aloofness of the 'academic mind' must give way to a new sympathy with all groups. More imagination is needed. We must have faith in American needs, American spirit and American hopes. A new type of morale must arise. Without sacrificing our scholarly aims to our cautious intellectualism, we must arise to meet America to-day as we did in the days of the war. We did not lose our self-respect then. In fact, many of us found life infinitely more worth while. In reality our quality of sportsmanship must be called into full action. . . . Now with this as the aim of our service to be rendered to the state, let us ask precisely what concrete things should be done, what changes are necessary, and just what methods are to be adopted. Purely by way of illustration and with no thought of offering either a complete or adequate programme, I suggest four things:

"1. The work and teaching of the University should be unified with our primary aim in full view. If we are to serve the American order and to keep this purpose consciously before us, it will give point to all our instruction. It will help, if not compel, the University to focus. Specifically it will demand that some effort shall be made to correlate the courses offered. In some way the student will be given such guidance that he will see the relationship of his courses to one another, to knowledge as a whole, and to life in its most practical relationships. Quietly, but inevitably, he will begin to have convictions. . . .

"2. The curricula of our various schools and colleges within the University must be definitely directed toward community needs. In fact, this tendency is already in full tide. . . . 3. The university must utilize its equipment and personnel for research work in solving the problems of the state. In fact this university should be the research centre of the state. Questions of all kinds and descriptions immediately related to the welfare of the people must be answered. . . .

"Just so in every realm, the university should serve the people. With every problem of government, economics, sociology, art, and education, the university should concern itself. In a word, it should become the thinking, investigating, philosophizing centre of the commonwealth. . . .

"No one need interpose here that this violates the cardinal principle of learning for learning's sake. Research activities of the kind described will only stimulate investigation of every type. We must never lose sight of the fact that the quality of civilization waits upon discovery, invention and research. A true university as distinguished from a college, must function mightily in this respect or it fails utterly. To aim at genuine service to the people through the solution of all types of problems can only give vitality and power to our graduate work. . . .

"4. Finally the university must permeate the state with knowledge. The people of to-day as never before understand the power which accrues to any one who has the facts and the proper training. The people are literally hungry for knowledge. . . . This university must come into closed contact with all of the schools of the state. They are making the citizens of to-morrow. We must be of vital service in recruiting the teaching profession. Groups of progressive business men throughout the state need and desire various business courses. We should attempt the training of social service workers, including field work and cooperation with the various departments of county, municipal, and state governments. There are limitless possibilities of wise and valuable cooperation with all kinds of private enterprises. Our extension division has done and is doing much. It deserves high approbation. It now needs adequate support and recognition. . . . But in the meantime, if we consciously aim to assume our share of the responsibility for the new America, we must remember that knowledge is the property of every man. In a word, we pretend to believe that men must be free. They are only free when they know how to live wisely and understand how to govern themselves justly and efficiently. In our appraisal of America we said that her greatest tyrant was ignorance. If now we are to serve her, we must give her knowledge. . . .

"Here then are four suggestive possibilities of the specific type of service which the university can and must render to the state if it is to be worthy of its history, its opportunities and its ideals."

SNAPPY PRACTICE.

Held Workout in Molson's Gym. Yesterday.

The advanced boxing class staged a very successful workout in the gymnasium last evening. Jack McBrearty was in charge, and put the men through a snappy practice. After a few minutes' running, followed by a turn with the medicine ball, the boxers indulged in some shadow boxing, sending straight lefts elusive uppercuts and half-armed jabs against the air. After this, they were paired off by the instructor and endeavored to put the blows they had been taught into practice against their opponents.

Good form was displayed by many of the men during this part of the programme, and if their condition and ability continue to improve as they have during the last few weeks, we may feel quite confident that our representatives in the coming Assault-at-Arms will more than reach previous standards. The Assault-at-Arms does not take place till February, but there are prospects of tournaments being put on with Cornell, Pennsylvania and some other American colleges.

Meanwhile, the boxers have been asked to furnish three bouts at the Old Scouts' Smoker on the ninth of this month, while an inter-faculty B., W. and F. Smoker is proposed for December 15th.

The hour has been changed from 8.15 p.m. to 5.15 p.m. The next meeting of the advanced class will be in the gym, to-morrow (Thursday), at 5.15 p.m. sharp.

COM. '23 DEFEATS ARTS BY 47 TO 6

Fielding of Arts Was Poor—Campbell Excels At Batting.

The Montreal High School Gymnasium was the scene of a very hard-hitting, one-sided game of ball last night. Commerce '23 defeated Arts '23 to the tune of 47 to 6. Arts' various pitchers were quite weak, while McCullough, for Commerce, had a delivery like a French seventy-five. Another reason for the lop-sided score was the sieve-like fielding of Arts, who made something like 15 errors. The Commercial infield was very good, and finished the game with a perfect average. Although all the Commerce men hit the ball heavily, the batting of Campbell was spectacular. He secured three circuit clouts and several three-baggers. Kornberg was also good, starting in the role of coach. Altogether, Commerce have a very strong team that will bear much watching in the future.

The line-up was:

Commerce '23	Arts '23
Gauthier	Duval
Ware	Reed
Burton	Allan
Dickie	Hutchison
Magid	Puddicombe
Campbell	Cowan
Clarke	Eppstein
Ferninger	Egg
McCullough	Owens

Umpire—Cockshutt.

SNOWSHOERS DECIDE UPON TRAMP IN DEC.

Lastly, that snowshoeing is sport. Ask anyone who attended the tramps last year, who benefited from the fresh air, from the exercise and from the associations made during the evening.

The main drawback to such an event at present is lack of snow; but, weather permitting, it is anticipated that the first tramp will be some time during the second week in December. Arrangements are being completed to secure snowshoes and moccasins for the night. Watch the "Daily" for further particulars.

RESTORATION OF PRICELESS WORKS

Objects Of Art Taken By Austria To Be Returned To Italy.

It is known that after conclusion of the armistice the Italian military commission in Vienna had among other tasks that of "effecting the return of such objects of artistic and scientific character as had been brought hither in the course of the war, partly from the territories occupied by the Austrians and partly from the Austrian territories now occupied by the Italians." But the military commission went far beyond these legitimate demands, and asked for the delivery of works which had been in Austrian collections for many years. After brief negotiations the Italian Government, by an ultimatum, enforced the delivery of the objects demanded and Austria had to submit. Thus in the past year objects d'art of enormous value which had been in Vienna for centuries passed into the hands of the Italians.

Now it is significant that the Peace Treaty of St. Germain has laid down that further demands by Italy for art treasures shall be submitted to a jury. It is thus plainly seen that the entente powers intend that such questions shall be decided by an impartial judgment.

Of the art objects which went to Italy by the decision of the Italian military commission, may be mentioned: The Mantua Gobellins after Raphael designs; the valuable manuscripts from various Neapolitan cloisters acquired by Emperor Charles VI in the year 1718; the Esthense manuscripts, paintings by Garofalo, Giorgione, Palma, Remmel, Orizote, Salvatore Rosa, Paola Veronese, Tintoretto, Sassoferrata, Paris Bordone, Albrecht Durer, Rubens, and a great number of pictures of the Roman school of the sixteenth century, the Venetian school of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and the Paduan school of the fifteenth century.

Furthermore, the enchanting little altar by Lorenzo Veneziano and paintings known to most connoisseurs, such as "Apocalyptic Representation" by Manfredi di Bartolomeo, "Saint Veneranda" by Lazzaro Bartolomeo, an "Adoration of the Saints" by Paola Veronese, the large painting "Saint Geminianus and Saint Severus" by Paola Veronese, the portrait of the Procurator Ottavio Grimani and the portrait of the Procurator Alessandro Contarini by Tintoretto, an "Adoration of Christ" by Hans Weiditz, an "Adoration of Christ" by Antonello da Messina (?), a triptych of Saint Julia by Hieronymus Bosch, a "Christ as Martyr" by Carpaccio, the famous "Madonna under the Orange Tree" by Cimo da Conegliano, three Saints by Jacopo Bassano, the famous "Philosopher" by Tintoretto, a Madonna by Cignarolo, and others; altogether about 156 pictures. Moreover, a large number of manuscripts and printed works taken from the Court Library (palimpsests, miniatures, purple parchments, original letters and musical manuscripts).

Hardly had the agitation among the artists of Austria, at the loss of such irreplaceable objects, somewhat subsided, since, after all, the entire population is in these times troubled by other more material cares, than it became known a few days ago that a special "art agreement" had been come to between the Austrian Government and Italy, according to which Austria renounces all those works of art as to the ownership of which an impartial jury should have passed judgment, as laid down in the Peace Treaty of St. Germain.

So far it is not known why this secret agreement was made. Neither the Kunsthistorisches Museum nor the Staatsamt fur Kultur und Unterricht was taken into the confidence of the government. The matter is a secret between the Austrian State Cabinet and the Italian Government. Some of the works of art and rare objects which are to go to Italy under this "special agreement" are: The manuscripts of the National Library originating from Naples, the wonderful bronzes of the so-called Esthense collection, the famous "Vortragkreuz" valuable reliquary of Cardinal Besarion, a splendid production of Byzantine goldsmith craft.

In order to indemnify Austria for these heavy losses, Italy is willing to relinquish her claims to the German bust of Kaiser Franz by Canova, taken from the Kunsthistorisches Museum. This bust by Canova, however, is a mediocre work which Italy can easily and readily spare from her own innumerable and unique art treasures; and the renunciation of the imperial coronation robes may probably be explained by the fact that Italy is well aware no impartial jury would ever have adjudged to her these splendid pieces of Moorish embroidery which constituted the bridal gift of Constance of Sicily to Emperor Henry VI von Hohenstaufen; particularly as these robes have been preserved in Germany since the close of the twelfth century.

It is a good thing to follow impulse sometimes. Do we say all the pleasant things that come to our lips? No, we let slip many little opportunities of throwing roses in another's path.

NOVICES MAKE GOOD SHOWING AT BOXING

Boxers Coming Ahead in Good Style.

TOURNEY POPULAR.

Dr. Lamb Lends Support—Old Boys Out Thursday—New Hour for Learners.

The Novice Boxing Tournament, which started last Thursday, was resumed at 5.15 yesterday. This tournament has proved a huge success in that it has brought out much new material which otherwise would have been left in the dark.

Geo. Fox handled the men very well, and the bouts were run off in good order. "Pat" McCulloch was referee, and Addy and Badger acted as judges. Dr. Lamb was chief cheer leader, and took over the men as they finished their bouts.

There were two men in the 125-pound class still to run off their bouts. These were Sullivan and Scharfe. These men did so well that it was decided that they deserved a place in the advanced class.

The 135-pound men were the next to be tried out. The bouts were in the following order:

McDuff vs. Brophy — Won by Brophy.

Wilson vs. Dineen — Won by Wilson.

Wolsey vs. Robertson — No decision.

Brennan vs. Wilson — Won by Brennan.

Weisburgh vs. Phillips — Won by Weisburgh.

Spratt vs. Rudenko — No decision.

Butler vs. Draper — Won by Butler.

Cousineau vs. Baker — Won by Baker.

Cope vs. Grear — No decision.

The bout between Wolsey and Robertson was most exciting, and it was decided to advance both men.

The sixth bout was between Spratt and Rudenko, and drew cheers from everybody. These men showed exceptional staying power and endurance. This quality was especially shown by Spratt, who, although he received a bad blow at the very start, continued to box throughout the entire three minutes.

Cope and Grear both showed up well, and will turn out with the old boys for the rest of the year.

Ten men were out for the 145-pound class, and although they did not show the same speed as the lighter men or as Ward, the 145-pound boxer of last year, they did fairly well. The bouts were as follows:

Quackenbush vs. Baker — Won by Quackenbush.

Eaton vs. Dempsey — Won by Dempsey.

Staker vs. Read — Won by Read.

McGillis vs. Charles — Won by McGillis.

The number of men trying out for the 158-pound class were three in number, while only one man turned out for the heavyweight class.

The bout in the 158-pound class was between Ayer and Hilton. The bout was won by Hilton. The third man in the weight was Stewardick.

Further eliminations will probably be made on Thursday, but this will rest entirely upon the decision by Coach McBrearty, who will be on the floor at 5.15. After Thursday, the 5.15 hour will be reserved for the advanced class and another hour will be arranged for the beginners.

At the next practice all the old men and the winners of their bouts on Tuesday and last Thursday are to be up at 5.15 for a good workout. Both Fox and McBrearty will be there to help the boxers.

THEATRES

PRINCESS.

The programme at the Princess Theatre this week contains a number of acts which, judged by the popularity achieved with the initial audiences, might all comparatively be ranked as exceptional. Noctette, in the role of a gypsy violinist and singer, was particularly vivacious in her presentations. In addition to her technical skill in the playing of her instrument, she is also the possessor of a charming voice and no small stage presence. Her encore selection, "Dear Old Pal of Mine," was rendered with a depth of expression that called forth generous appreciation. The Great Lester held the interest of his audience like few ventriloquists are able to, by his introduction of many novelties and by his excellent acting in general.

The pretty girls in Ward's unique comedy, "A Musical Bouquet," proved a rousing success. Their talent in both singing and action created a very favorable impression, to say the least. The Japanese Acrobats performed some of the most outstanding feats, which are of a singular nature, not being of the variety usually seen in local vaudeville playhouses.

LOEW'S.

An outstanding feature at Loew's this week is the feature picture, which, in addition to being exceptionally original in its plot, has the further attraction of being a Canadian story. This feature in itself bids fair to make any picture successful, and "Behold My Wife" is no exception to the rule.

The story was written by Gilbert Parker, and is excellently adapted to a screen version by Jesse Lasky. From the very start it is characterized by originality and unexpected developments foreign to the general run of recent photo-plays.

The eldest son of an English general is in Canada looking after his interests in the Hudson's Bay Company. He returns from a lengthy sled trip to his headquarters, and learns that his English fiancée has proved faithless and married an English nobleman. He then proceeds to drown his sorrows with whiskey, and as a result, marries a half-breed squaw. He then writes to his family and notifies them of his act. Soon after his "bride" arrives in the old English household as a confirmation of his boast. His younger brother, reconciles the family and proceeds to make a refined lady out of the squaw. In this he succeeds wonderfully.

In the meantime, Frank Armour descends to the lowest depths of shame in the backwoods towns of Saskatchewan, and after having hit the bottom is rescued and reformed by a party of surveyors. In time he returns to England to claim his wife and redeem himself, in her opinion, at least. He is surprised to find her entirely an English lady, settled into the heart of his home with her lovely boy. His family welcome his return and "the end" is entirely satisfactory to even the most sentimental.

The vaudeville is, with the exception of one act, not above the ordinary, but this one act — Odiva and Her Seals, is most attractive. The Theodoros Trio give a rather good acrobatic exhibition. Rice and Francis, comedians; a short playlet by Thos. Jackson & Co.; and Marston & Manley complete the programme. In addition to the above is a weekly picture, showing the game at Kingston among other things.

THE NEW GRAND.

"The Branded Woman," this week's offering at the New Grand, is an admirable production. Norma Talmadge, in the title role, plays a difficult part with her customary skill. "The Branded Woman" is Ruth Whitlock, brought up by her grandfather, the Judge, under the false name of Sawyer. She is kept in ignorance of her mother, who runs a fashionable gambling establishment, and is sent to a select young ladies' school. The mother effects a ruse, and succeeds in getting control over her daughter. Society, having rejected the girl on account of her evil mother, the latter strives to drag Ruth even lower than herself.

Judge Whitlock, however, intervenes, and rescues his granddaughter. Shortly afterwards she marries a young British diplomat, Douglas Courtney, and they proceed to Paris.

"Velvet" Craft, the mother's accomplice, goes to France after the severe injury of the mother by fire, and there unfolds the story to Courtney, who was hitherto ignorant of his mother-in-law's evil reputation. Dramatic scenes ensue, and Ruth leaves her husband and little child, returning to her grandfather in America. Courtney follows her, and a reconciliation takes place. A comedy and pictorial weekly complete the programme. The New Grand Orchestra plays especially good music this week.

ORPHEUM.

This week the Orpheum Players present a comedy of rare merit, entitled "Never Say Die." Full of pleasing situations, cleverly acted, it furnishes an entertainment calculated to satisfy the most exacting demands of the modern public.

The story, in brief, is as follows: It opens in the drawing room of the home of Mrs. Stevenson, of London. England. Mrs. Stevenson, bent only upon making happy her only daughter, Violet, consents to the proposed marriage of her to Hector Walters, a budding, though penniless, artist. Interest in the meanwhile is centred, by two medical friends of Violet's mother, upon Dionysius Woodbury, an American invalid millionaire.

These solemnly foretell the death of Dionysius within the short space of thirty days; during which time he is especially adjured not to "eat, drink, nor smoke," and not even to excite himself. On this memorable evening, and at the crucial moment, a messenger suddenly brings news of the failure of the Bank of Scotland, and incidentally of the loss of the whole of Mrs. Richardson's fortune. This is a pangs; but a brilliant thought of Dionysius saves all. Taking into the secret only Walters, Violet, and his servant, Griggs, Woodbury suggests that he marry Violet himself, that she and her mother immediately proceed to Russia, and that Walters takes a year's study in painting in Italy. In the meantime he would arrange about leaving his entire fortune to Violet, and, according to best medical advice, die within a month. After a year or so, Walters could return from Italy and marry the rich young widow. They close with the plan. A year passes. The scene is now in the bachelor apartments of Dionysius Woodbury, who, after drinking sweetly and eating more, is certainly more alive than ever. (The action of the play now assumes a faster pace.) A divorce alone can save the situation. "La Cigale," the chef's sweetie, and a hired detective play in the great "triangle" scene, but unluckily at the wrong time. There are entanglements at every turn, and Woodbury is left in a more deplorable position. Moreover, he is in love — in love with Violet. Logically, there is now nothing left to do but to find another "job" for Walters. It is found — that Walters, instead of spending his time studying painting, had spent it at fashionable parties in Italy, and that he was already mixed up in an intrigue with "La Cigale." There is now no necessity for the divorce; Violet still remains Mrs. Woodbury, and the curtain falls upon a happy scene of reconciliation.

The acting throughout the above comedy is magnificent. It would more than repay the theatre-lover to see the play. The whole action of the play is centred in William Naughton, who plays the part of Woodbury. Mary Hill, portraying Mrs. Stevenson, a mother whose only thoughts are of and for her daughter, plays a splendid role. One other figure is noteworthy — Griggs, Woodbury's servant. Harvey Hayes is truly to be applauded for the representation he makes here. One must really see the play to appreciate it.
